FIM Emerging Yield Fund

FIM EMERGING YIELD GROWTH UNIT (ISIN FI0008811930)
THE FUND IS MANAGED BY FIM ASSET MANAGEMENT LTD WHICH IS PART OF S-BANK LTD.

Objective and investment policy

The objective of the Fund's investment activity is, through active fund management, to earn as high a return on the invested assets as possible from the fixed-income markets of emerging economies over the medium term. The Fund does not have a benchmark index.

The Fund invests its assets globally primarily in bonds issued by emerging market governments, but some 15% of the assets may also be invested in bonds issued by companies located in such countries. The Fund does not usually invest in the riskiest issuers that have a risk rating of CCC+/Caa1 or worse. The Fund's investment picks are based on the expected interest rate level of the investments as well as the development of emerging market currencies. Additional information on where the Fund may invest its assets can be obtained from the fund rules.

The Fund nearly always hedges against currency risk from outside the emerging economies with forward exchange contracts.

The Fund's basic currency is the euro. The Fund has only one unit class, comprising growth units. No return is paid out to the growth units. Units in the Fund may be subscribed for and redeemed on all Finnish banking days. Unitholders may redeem the units they own by notifying the fund management company of this.

Recommendation: this fund may not be appropriate for investors who plan to withdraw their money within 4 years.

Risk and reward profile

The Fund's risk category is 4. This means there is a medium risk related to the value development of the fund units. The Fund's risk category has been determined based on changes in the historical performance of a fund unit (volatility) and thus may not accurately indicate the Fund's future risk level. The Fund's risk category may rise or diminish in the future, and even the lowest risk category does not mean the investment is completely free of risk. Fund investments carry the risk of negative value development.

The biggest individual factors affecting a fund unit's value in the short term are changes in general interest rate levels or in the risk premiums paid by issuers as well as the appreciation and depreciation of emerging market currencies against the euro. In the emerging markets, both liquidity and political risks may have a significant impact on the value of investments.

The Fund's performance may thus fluctuate more heavily than that of fixed-income funds in general. FIM's fund management style, which is proactive and follows our own market vision, may also have a considerable impact on the value of the Fund, especially when compared to other similar products. The Fund carries a currency risk as investments are made also in currencies other than the euro.

- The risk indicator may not fully reflect the following risks:
- The use of derivative contracts may increase the Fund's counterparty and operational risk. The use of derivatives for hedging purposes may diminish the Fund's risk and expected return. The use of derivatives for obtaining additional returns may increase the Fund's risk and expected return.
 - Credit risk: uncertainty regarding the solvency of the issuers of debt instruments. Credit risk affects the value of the Fund's fixed-income investments in cases where the credit rating of the issuer changes or credit premiums in general change.
 - Liquidity risk: liquidating the Fund's investments may not be possible within the expected timeframe, which may hinder the payout of redemptions.
